

Midway Through, the Members Chafe

Wired from the HMS Exeter – The Members of the Sturdevant Expedition (or MOE) are chomping at their bits to get to work. I've never seen so much dedication.

Today, Dr. Cook and Dr. Doh teamed up to see how they could cooperate. "It's about efficiency really" said Dr. Doh. "I would not like spending time re-doing some of the work that Jazz did already."

Other MOE are researching data about West Djahar, and are adding to it. Dr. Agbe recognized one of the drawings that was in Harriman's reconstructed journal, as C. rostrata a variant of Apiculata. Ms. Murcheson released her notes from when she was abducted by Raul up until she returned to London.

There are gaps in the notes, which I personally would like investigate further.

Kyle added something to the mix by telling us about his nightmare, he dreamed about a Mutiny of the Expedition, and a leering white-haired old man leaning over him and then he was awakened by Dr. Fiddler.

All this talk from the Expedition leader about mutiny has this author frightened. After all, he isn't exactly projecting confidence.

Ms. Sophie Baxter-Wallops is the official Reporter and Photographer documenting the Sturdevant Expedition on special assignment. She will be reporting regularly in this space for the duration of the Expedition.
