

February 9th, 2003

My therapist keeps asking about my patients. He says he's too worried about me becoming too attached to them. He suggested I take a month or so off work, just to let me relax and spend time not focused on my troubles.