

D. JONES

Akamu,

It was a pleasure seeing you on Centauri. I hope your travels were safe and easy on the way home to Oceanus.

Time is of the essence, so I will get directly to the business at hand. As you know, the council does not exactly see things your way. Some do; I know the Aramorak's and Pax are behind us. Iris too, but as you know, they don't care for us much. They are good allies to have. But that makes five of thirteen, not enough to bring any formal justice against Horizon.

Akamu, you know this, but I see it every day. There are some that simply do not care. They would let Earth fall without any hesitation. It's a lost cause to them, a stumbling block, a past that is held onto too closely. I don't think there is anything we can do about those people. There are many, however, that allow fear to control their thinking. They are afraid of what will happen with Horizon out of the picture. How will we continue? Yes, the question is valid, but we will find a way. We did in the past and we can again. We need to convince them of that.

That is our task, Akamu. The fight on Earth is not up to us right now, but I do believe we can assist them. Your recent communications with me regarding a group on Earth; not the group behind the 2260 revolution, but a new group who have pledged their help; I believe linking them with who is left from the revolution will be extremely important. As you know, using that name across interstellar communications is NOT advised. I believe I have a solution to that issue. I have contacted your friends at Yimmu Logistics. Knowing them, I figured they would be up for a challenge.

The Union is preparing to send their quarterly guides. Were you aware that Horizon has confiscated those at the Jovian Terminal for the last sixteen years? Not this time. As long as Yimmu Logistics can get around the Jovian Terminal Security, which they already have done for you, it shouldn't be a problem. Akamu, those guides have information regarding the 2260 revolution. That's how we link up the new with the old. That's how the fight begins on Earth.

Of course, there is also the matter of the information I promised you. I appreciate your patience, I know that sending things like this is ancient but we have to be careful.

Inside the folder, you'll see a document that was passed through the council and the PECO over a year ago. Listen, Akamu. I see how Horizon works. This is not their typical method of operation. They claim planets, destroy them, and harvest. Look at the blueprint. They are building a listening station. What they are listening for, I don't know yet, but those coordinates show where.

In the next few days, Horizon will begin recruiting for a job at this listening station. Recruiting. Horizon does not recruit. Everything is always internal. Something big could be happening here. Your friends on Earth; this could be an opportunity for them to get inside and find out what's going on. Akamu, please, above all else. Stay safe.

D. Jones

Date: 05.01.2275

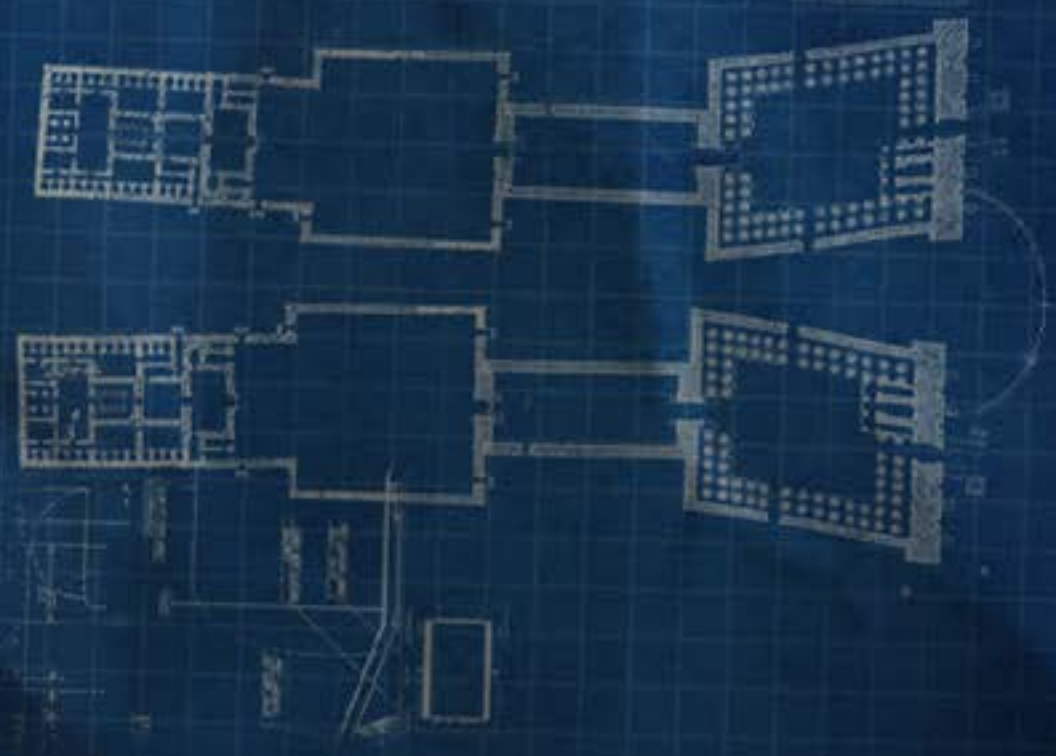

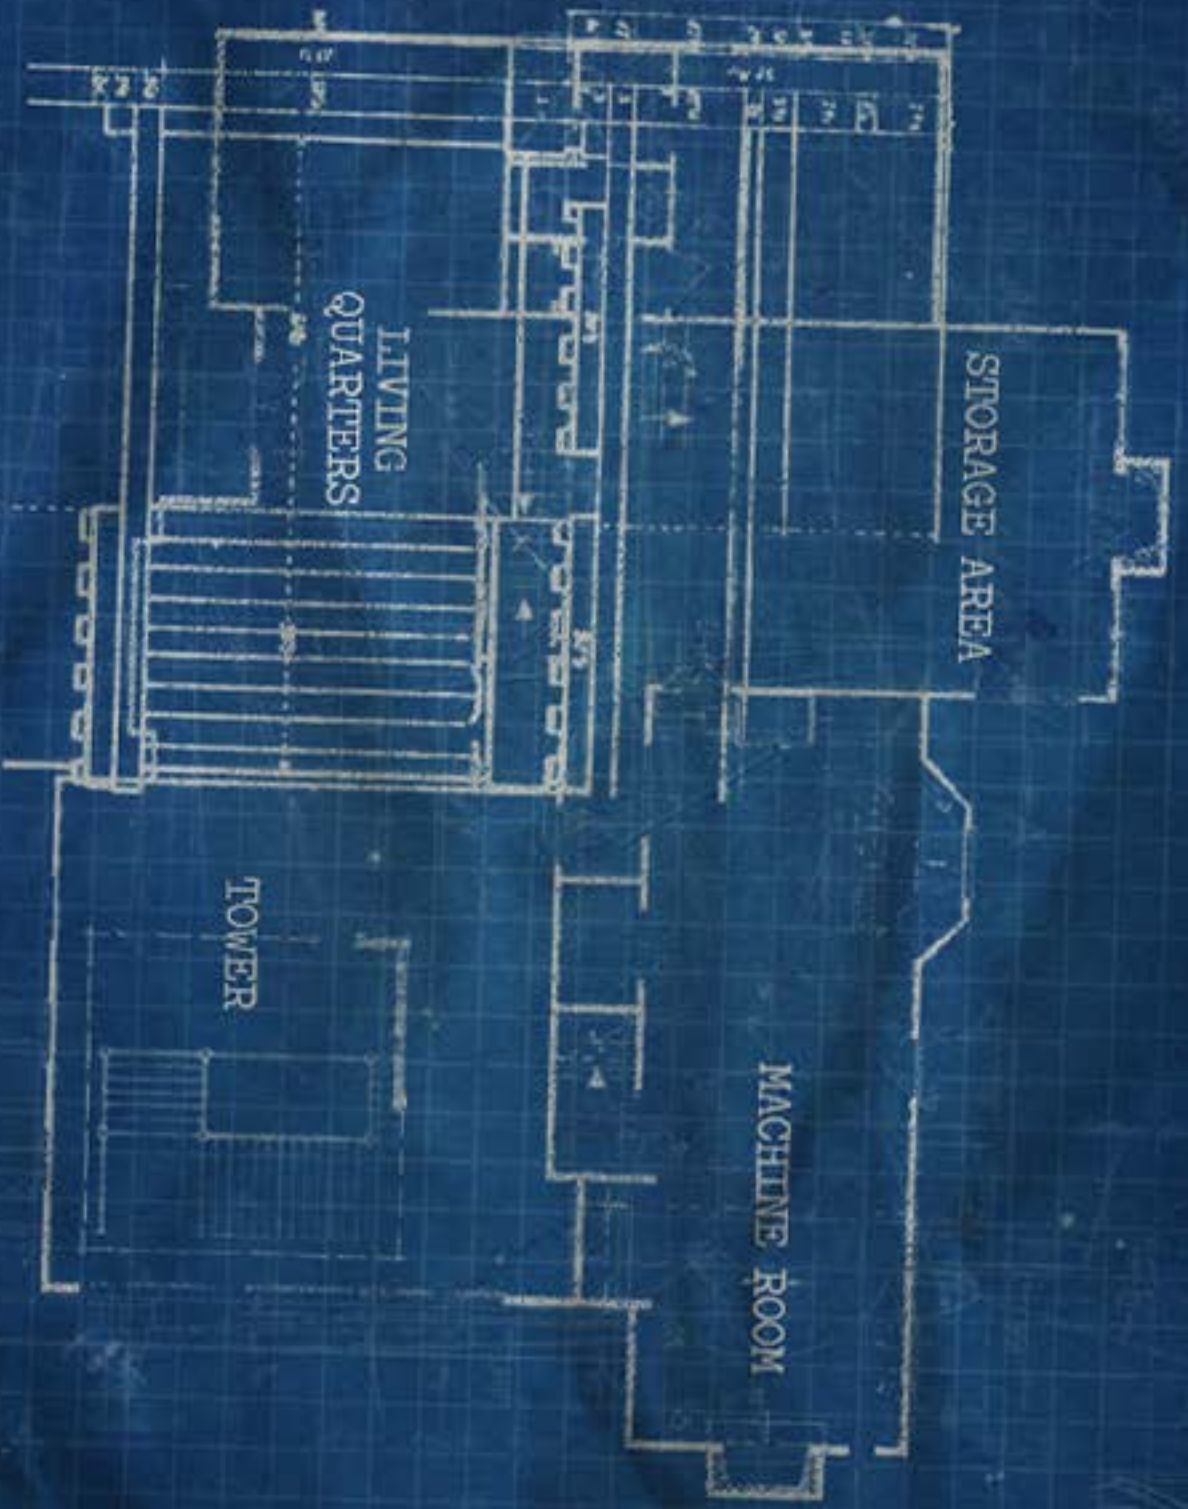

This document is an official claim of a planetary body. To be approved, the council must pass the claim with a 60% vote. The claim must also pass through the PECO and be signed off before it is officially awarded to the claimer.

Constellation: CYGNUS
Official System Designation: 77 CYGNI
Unofficial System Designation: N/A
Official Name Assigned by Claiming Organization: ATLAS

Reference Point: EARTH (Sol System)
Right ascension: $21^{\text{h}} 42^{\text{m}} 22.94^{\text{s}}$
Declination: $41^{\circ} 04' 37.3''$
Stated Purpose: See attached documents.

19H 25M 17.01S ± 5S
-27°03' ± 20'

ATLAS LISTENING STATION

DWG. NO. HT800794
DATE

HORIZON INDUSTRIES
SHEET 1 OF 1