MULTIDIMENSIONAL TRANSPORT COMES TO BOSTON

Boston, MA — After two years of planning and production, Red Kore Communications, a Boston-based supplier of (legal) mind-expansion products, has just released the first stage of an ambitious project: "TELEPORT: A multidimensional transport system."

TELEPORT is a fun, easy-to-use guide to astral projection and other forms of non-physical travel. It was created to satisfy the surging interest in tools for exploring non-physical dimensions. TELEPORT is intended for a broad audience, ranging from ardent spiritual seekers to club-goers looking for something to get the night moving. For those with spiritual leanings, TELEPORT is a fine complement to popular practices such as yoga and meditation.

TELEPORT is powered by a network of 18 consciousness exploration units, or trips. Trips work by attuning the intellectual, imaginative and intuitive centers of the user's consciousness. While each person comes to understand a trip in a unique manner, one of TELEPORT's most intriguing qualities is that each trip generates an objective portal which is the same for everyone. This means that people can use a particular trip to engage group transports, exploring wild landscapes together even when they might be separated by significant time or distance in the physical world. Of course, TELEPORT works just as well for individuals who like to fly alone.

Each trip package – $19.95, and available exclusively from Red Kore's website at www.redkore.com – includes 3 trip cards (1 ignition + 2 data), 3 series-specific wafers, a plastic box, and a plastic sleeve with lanyard. The site also offers wafer refills and will soon provide additional items such as trip journals and branded apparel. In addition, the site offers suggestions on trip activation, a community area for trippers to share their experiences, and a section monitoring the Internet's response to the TELEPORT system.

TELEPORT is a unique and powerful experience. Just check out what one of our trippers recently told us: "Man...this just keeps getting better and better....Or is that 'more and more bizarre'?"
