A COMPANY IS LEFT PUZZLED OVER THE PUBLIC'S SPONTANEOUS DEMAND FOR ANSWERS

Triton Enterprises has recently began receiving an overwhelming influx of emails and voice messages inquiring about two men; one by the name of Van Mantra and another by the name Ethan Haas. "We have checked our employee database and have no record of these people currently on our staff," reports Kellie Graham, the Company's spokesperson, "It's all very puzzling to us."

"Additionally, many of those emails contained a question about Divinus, but we don't know why anyone would ask us about this. We don't have any connection to the proposed resort; however this may change one day soon."

Graham added, "We'd like to help the public find the answers they're looking for, but we just don't have that information. All we can do is remain hard at work assuming our role in helping to improve the future for all. And so with this formal statement, maybe we can now begin to put an end to all of these inquiries and all get on with what needs to be done."

About Triton Enterprises

Founded in 1807 in present day Latvia, Triton Enterprises started as a small steam engine design firm. From those humble beginnings Triton Enterprises has branched into various fields of research and finance. Triton Enterprises recently opened it's newest production plant in Stevenson, Washington. This advanced research center will focus primarily on US Department of Defense contract work.
